How to take apart a motorguide trolling motors ebay

TROLLING MOTOR INSTALLATION AND OPERATION

IMPORTANT: A minimum of four mounting bolts are required to mount the trolling motor to the boat. Spread the mounting bolts as far apart as practical for the most secure mounting.

3. Drill the mounting holes with a 7/16 in (18.14 mm) diameter drill bit. Remove any debris.

IMPORTANT: Using a larger drill bit, counterbore the holes on fiberglass boats to prevent cracking.

4. Insert the rubber isolators between the base of the mount and the boat mounting surface. Place the tie-down strap under the mount bracket, hook and snap side down, with the buckle facing toward the outside of the boat.

NOTE: If the trolling motor is being mounted to a carpeted boat deck, the rubber isolators are not required.

5. Install the steel washers and nylon locking nuts onto the mounting bolts underneath the boat deck. Tighten them securely with (1716 in.) wrenches.

With more than 40 or more on offer, and with tongue-twisting brand names like Fayelong and Flyhero, U-BCOO and Caroute, sorting out the good from the bad and the ugly, can be a challenge. Another plus; that 25cm diameter three-blade prop is made of tough fibreglass-reinforced nylon rather than cheap plastic. Buy it now on Amazon Buy it now on eBay EP Carry trolling motor Most trolling motors tend to look the same, right? Buy it now on Amazon Buy it now on eBay Watersnake Venom SXW trolling motor Call it the quiet thunder from Down Under. They can start off as low as 18 pounds, but load-up your RIB with crew and supplies and you'll be going nowhere fast. Throttle back to three knots and it should run for three and a half hours on a charge. Yes, there's still a separate battery, but here it's a lithium-ion pack in a soft case weighing just 2.9kg. This doesn't affect the amount you pay. Best trolling motors available right now Minn Kota Riptide 45 SC trolling motor It's hard to beat this rugged, reliable troller from the company that essentially invented the trolling motor, and has been building them since 1934. Plug in its fast charger and it'll re-juice the battery in less than five hours. Of course, if you need more oomph, there's always the 68-pound version. At £159.99 with a free spare prop thrown-in for good measure, the price is hard to beat, especially as it's designed for saltwater. We've tested some of these models against the Torqeedo (and ePropulsion) electric outboard motor test and, though they don't offer quite the same level of functionality, many do pretty well comparatively. But there's a sturdy fin at the base of the motor to protect the prop and the tiller extends up to 35cm and angles up nicely. Remember, many of the motors you'll see advertised will be aimed at fisher-folk looking to slowly sneak-up on a snook, rather than punch an incoming tide. We'd go for the torquey, yet super-quiet 54-pound Venom with its three-bladed prop, telescopic tiller and digital volt meter on the head cover. Weighing only 8.2kg, it packs a 55-pound punch, features five forward and three reverse gears, and offers a five-level LED battery indicator. Serious stuff. Buy it now on Amazon Buy it now on eBay MotorGuide R3 Digital 55 trolling motor MotorGuide is part of US-based Brunswick Corporation - they own Mercury Marine - and have been engineering trolling motors for over half a century. For more humble applications, like pushing RIBs and dinks, they have the high-quality, transom-mounted R3 and R5 digital saltwater series. Buy it now on Amazon Buy it now on eBay Haswing Osapian 55 trolling motor Up and coming Chinese trolling motor maker Haswing offers everything from a £119 30-pound thruster to a Torqeedo-rivalling lithium-ion-juiced outboard for a hefty £1,240. We pick out 8 of the best trolling motors that have enough electric power to punch an incoming tide without breaking the bank So you're looking for an electric outboard to whizz your RIB around the harbour. Buy it now on electricpaddle.com Torqeedo Travel 1003 trolling motor Yes, it's pricey at £1,449 and up, but to power your RIB with the least fuss this German-made Torqeedo Travel 1003 is still the Gold Standard of electric outboards. The same lozenge-shaped head, skinny shaft, underwater pod with a prop on the end, and wires leading down to a separate lead-acid battery. And it's such a lovely piece of design with its built-in high-performance lithium-ion battery pack and distinctive grey and orange colour scheme. A icy-cool white finish too. And we recommend nothing less than a 105 amp-hour deep-cycle marine battery to give you the range you'll want. Their big focus is on developing trollers for serious fishing machines and have a tight relationship with Lowrance, integrating hi-tech sonar transducers and chartplotter technology into trolling motors. Buy it now on Amazon Buy it now on eBay Bison Neraus 55 trolling motor The best-selling electric trolling motor on Amazon UK right now, the US-built Bison Neraus 55 is all about value. You'll also want a trolling motor that's designed for saltwater rather than fresh, and with a transom mount rather than one at the bow. For us, what sets it apart is its 30-degree tilting tiller handle - it also extends by 15cm - as well as its large three-blade prop and, our favourite, the 10-point LED battery meter. Also, when looking at prices, remember you're going to need to add-in the cost of a 12-volt battery. There's plenty of tough composites in their construction - including the shaft - and refrigerator-white paint. The motor and battery combined tip the scales at just 9.5kg. The company reckons that powering an eight-foot RIB, the 55 would give a top speed of 4mph, depending on weight in the boat. Available in sizes from a 45-pound version with a 91cm shaft, to a muscular 112-pounder, our favourite is still the entry-level Riptide 45 SC, packing 45 pounds of thrust. For the money, it's hard to beat. Power here is important. The base version comes with a 530Wh battery, though for around £250 extra you can get the bigger 915Wh battery pack for extra range. Sorry, that Halfords cheapo won't cut it. A fair dinkum price at around £317. Despite the value price, there's no shortage of 5-star reviews on Amazon UK praising the solid performance and silent running. Yes, they're pricey, but they're built using aluminium alloy and stainless steel topped off with a three-coat corrosion protection process. So which electric trolling motors should be on your wishlist? Who wouldn't want a fancy Torqeedo to hang off your transom? With 68 pounds of thrust - that's roughly equivalent to a 3hp petrol outboard - it'll push a decent-sized RIB at around five knots at full throttle. Budget between £80 and £120 for a good one. If you click on this then we may receive a small amount of money from the retailer when you purchase the item. But at £1,450 and up, chances are it's not in the budget. All run on separate 12-volt battery power and operate with five forward and three reverse speeds. We also like the clever Digital Maximiser tech that helps extend battery power. With prices starting at under £100, the best trolling motors are lightweight, dependable, and if you pay a bit extra, extremely well-built. Newport Vessels X-Series 55 trolling motor This California-based company's electric troller delivers a 55-pound punch yet tips the scales at a lightweight 10.4kg. Buy it now on BHG Marine Buy it now on Force 4 Don't miss our electric outboard motor and trolling motor test. A solid alternative, however, is the trusty trolling motor at a fraction of the cost. For value hunters, we like the simple delights of the Osapian 55 costing around £147. And talking of power, know that when it comes to trolling motors, they're rated in pounds of thrust, not horsepower. Buy it now on Amazon Buy it now on eBay (UK) Buy it now on eBay (US) With each product is a 'Buy it now' link. Go for at least 45 pounds of thrust - 55 is better - and you'll have power in reserve when you need it. According to makers PropELe, it can easily push something like a three-metre Walker Bay RIB at over 3.5 knots. And it has all the typical trolling motor goodies, like a composite shaft and transom bracket, an LED battery level indicator, five forward and three reverse speeds, plus a two-year warranty with Bison's UK service centre. With five forward speeds and three in reverse, a 15cm telescopic tiller, indestructible, guaranteed-for-life composite shaft, and full two-year warranty it's a great balance between performance and value. It's also got a durable composite shaft and five forward and three reverse speeds. But which one to buy? We like the R3 55-pound thruster with a 91cm shaft, which at around £280 is still excellent value. The X-Series is also fully saltwater-resistant and comes with a two-year warranty. Unlike that fancy Torqeedo with its snap-on battery pack, trollers need a separate battery for juice. Right now, it's only available in the US at $1,600 - roughly £1,220 - though they'll happily ship one over. This Aussie-made saltwater troller from Dandenong, Victoria, comes with a choice of 34, 44 and 54-pound thrust motors and 66, 76 or 91cm shafts. The cast aluminium drive shaft won't be as durable as composite versions, and the plastic head cover is definitely on the flimsy side. The US-made EP Carry shakes things up by looking more like a traditional outboard, with a traditional cover and long steering tiller.
